

Anti-Pornography Youths Back Mrs. Chapel in Race

Miss Michelle Cortum and Miss Betsy Merrill, co-chairmen of Youth Against Pornography, have announced the support of their organization for Mrs. Dorothy Chapel, candidate for State Assemblyman in the 46th District.

izes that the moral development of the youth of California is essential to the continued welfare of our state," Miss Cortum and Miss Merrill said. "We support Mrs. Chapel because she will give genuine assistance to Governor Ronald Reagan in his fight for imposed legislation to control pornography."

MRS. CHAPEL is supporting the governor's program to improve California's obscenity laws. The legislative program which she supports has also been approved by the Attorney General's office, the District Attorney's Association, the California Peace Officers' Association, and the State Bar Association.

Mrs. Chapel is seeking election to the Assembly to fill the vacancy caused by the death of her late husband, Assemblyman Charles Edward Chapel. During his 17 years in the legislature, Chapel was the author of numerous bills to combat pornography. As a candidate, Mrs. Chapel has pledged to continue his work, and his capable and effective representation of the people and communities of the 46th District.

Protection Of Property Right Vowed

Protection of rights of property owners is a principal campaign issue for Mrs. Dorothy Chapel in the 46th Assembly District, she told a group attending a brief coffee hour at the home of Hazel Johnson in the Riviera Tuesday evening.

In her campaign she has called for repeal of the Rumford forced housing law, and has promised support of legislation to reduce property taxes, combat crime and narcotics violations, and provide adequate state support for public schools.

Mrs. Chapel reminded the group at the Johnson home that she had been endorsed by the Press-Herald and by the California Federated National Business and Profes-

Replacement Arms, Legs? TRW Executive Says Yes

By LILLIAN MONEY

Will it one day be possible for a Sandy Koufax, faced with forced retirement from a lucrative baseball career, to acquire a new mechanical elbow to replace his arthritic natural one? Will a Mickey Mantle be able to trade in his osteomyelitic shins for artificial ones? And will these replacement parts perform, day after day, with complete, unlimited reliability and without the necessity for novocaine shots or whirlpool baths?

Will it one day be possible for a musical genius or a dynamic executive, feeling his own heart stammer and lose rhythm in the initial warnings of heart failure, to visit a new kind of surgical hospital and have a mechanical, replacement heart installed? One he will never have to worry about again from a performance standpoint?

CONVERSELY, will machines become so sophisticated that they will fly all our planes, pilot all our ships, man all our trains without a human hand on the controls? Will they seed and cultivate and harvest field crops without human supervision of any kind? Will products be manufactured, packed, warehoused, shipped, delivered, and time. He spent 10 years with General Electric as product design engineer on aircraft radars and as reliability manager for G.E.'s radio guidance systems on Atlas ICBMs, before coming to TRW.

Richard R. Landers, manager of the Reliability Department, Electronics Systems Division of TRW's Redondo Beach facility, not only thinks these things will be possible but has put himself on record as predicting them — and more — in his new book, "Man's Place in the Dybosphere" published by Prentice-Hall.

THE PREMISE of the book is that man and machines are headed for a completely new environment — the "Dybosphere" — in which humans will achieve the ultimate in mechanization, and machines will achieve the ultimate in humanness. Here and now, Landers contends, both man and machine are in a cross-over period of transition.

Landers is, as a matter of fact, in a rather good position to support his theories, concerned as he is with testing the reliability of some of the most sophisticated space hardware designed up to this

Most things have gone up since 1939.

But not this.

A kilowatt-hour of Edison electricity has gone down a third in price since 1939.*

But, of course, you're using a lot more electricity now than you did then. The typical home uses electricity 40 different ways.

So maybe you're not wild about the length of ladies' dresses today.

But at least electricity is heading in the right direction.

*The average cost of a kilowatt-hour of electricity to Edison's residential customers today is 34.4% lower than in 1939.
